"Indeed," said Mary, "why didn't you stand up?"

Ancient Fishing Methods
Still Prevalent in Malta

Precisely as did their forebears in biblical days, the inhabitants of the quaint fishing villages of Marsa and Zurrico, on the island of Malta, in the Mediterranean, today follow the life of the fisherman for their livelihood.

Many of the old fishing methods employed in the early days are in use today. The fishermen use a peculiar type of trap attached to their boat, instead of the nets commonly employed.

Fishermen of Malta are happy,
now that the Allies dominate the Mediterranean. No longer do they have to fear the Axis aerial attacks to which they were subjected day after day before the rout of Rommel in Africa.

SNAPPY FACTS
ABOUT

 Recapped tires will render satisfactory service—if the tire carcass is in good condition, good workmanship is exercised, inflation rules are observed and speed is kept to 35 mph. Have your tires recapped at a reliable shop.

Scientists have developed the fact that when a car is driven at 50 mph there is a centrifugal force of two tons trying to pull the tires apart.

That our standard of living is affected in many ways by the shortage of rubber will be appreciated when it is known that normally about 50,000 items were made with rubber.

'Backyard' Type Of Slaughter is Legal

(Reprinted from Clarksburg Exponent of Tuesday, July 20)

Provisions for legalized slaughtering of "backyard" produced livestock for home consumption were made this week in instructions issued by the New York regional office of the Food Distribution to its supervisors. Paul E. Wright, meat supervisor here, announced today.

Under the regulations, persons other than butchers who have raised livestock "in whole or substantial part" may apply to their county meat board for a permit to slaughter. The meat committee will make a recommendation to the area supervisor, who in turn will issue the necessary butcher permit. Holders of such permits may perform the slaughter themselves if they have the facilities or hire a custom slaughterer.

The limitation contained in the phrase "in whole or substantial part" excludes the outright purchase of unraised meat animal which has been raised by a dealer and purchased with the obvious intent of converting it immediately into meat, Wright said.

The provision does apply to the many persons, particularly in smaller communities, who have raised meat animals this year as a contribution to the wartime food supply, much in the same manner that they have planted Victory Gardens.

These people, having no precious slaughtering record, would be unable legally to kill their meat under the general provision of the Food Distribution Order No. 27, which regulates wartime slaughtering, Wright said. "This order was formulated after consulting with butchers and packers, and had been effective since April 1. Under it only persons who established slaughterers in the fall were granted permits and thus closed to newcomers who might try to enter the business to take advantage of the artificial demand for meat created by conditions."

War Production Board Representative Visits Here

W. H. Pfeifer, a representative of War Production Board, visited the city Monday and Tuesday. He met with committee leaders Monday at the court house, with Dr. W. L. Hartman, president of the chamber of commerce, and the two men discussed the war situation.

Prior to entering the Naval service, Ensign Viering received his A.B. degree from West Virginia Wesleyan College.

Having been designated a Naval aviator, he will go on active duty at one of the Navy's air operational training centers before being assigned to a combat zone.

Furious Tank Battles Rage in Russia As Nazis Seek to Encircle Red Army; Farm Income Increased by Two Billion; Allied Victories Threaten Jap Bases

EDITORIALS IN THIS SECTION. Other opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspeper's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.

RUSSIA: Blitz Again

Seeking to wipe out the big Russian bulge on the central front, 500,000 German soldiers continued their attacks at both ends of the bulge, with the objective of encircling the huge Red army from the rear.

At the southern extremity of the bulge near Belgorod, the Reds admitted that the Nazis had scored early gains. According to the Russians, the Germans were knocking up their forces with masses of tanks and airplanes. In action was a new tank, bigger than the 90-ton Mark VI.

From dispatches, the battle assumed the old lines of German blitzkrieg. The Nazis concentrated their strength at certain points and then threw their whole weight against them. As their forces streamed through, the Russians moved to plug off the tanks and infantry and isolate them from the main armies.

Although claiming success, the Germans said that the huge bulge still extended 85 miles to the west.

CONGRESS: Adjourns for Recess

Capping its hectic deliberations with an agreement to give President Roosevelt a free hand in reducing retail food costs through subsidies, the 75th Congress recessed for a summer vacation.

The session saw passage of wartime legislation. For the first time, taxpayers were put on a current basis with the enactment of pay-as-you-go legislation. Approximately 130 billion dollars was appropriated.

The administration's authority to make lend-lease and reciprocal trade agreements was renewed, and permission was given for use of 2 billion dollars to stabilize foreign currencies.

President Roosevelt's limitation of wartime salaries to $25,000 was repealed. Spurred by the walkout of the nation's coal miners, anti-strike legislation was passed over a presidential veto. Although both houses took favorable action on the Commerce Credit corporation and agricultural department bills, they killed a Senate proposal to raise the coal tax to $1.40, and also voted to abolish crop insurance.

PACIFIC ADVANCE: Europe Tense

The island groups of the South Pacific know peace no more.

Below, the new King's Gulf, where the Japanese have been driven from their U.S. bases.

On the horizon, New Guinea, where the Allies are moving to the south.

THE STORY SO FAR: The story of their part in the battle for the Philippines is being told by one of the five naval officers who are all that is left of Motor Torpedo Boat Squadron 3. They are Lieut. John Bulkeley (now Lieutenant Commander), squadron commander; Lieut. H. H. Kelly, second-in-command; and Ensigns Anthony Akers and George R. Cox Jr. After taking General MacArthur and his party safely to Cebu, to the southern Islands, Squadron 3 prepared to participate in a "great offensive" planned against the Japs. But our planes and ships that were supposed to come didn't appear, and Lieut. Bulkeley was riding in the boat and the one Lieut. Kelly was riding in were forced into hiding.

CHAPTER XIII

"They didn't get us then," said Kelly. "At midnight our escape began. The destroyer lost me with its light temporarily, so I did a ninety-degree turn so as to pass astern of her and lose her. I continued on that course five minutes, heading directly away from her, then to the left in another ninety-degree turn, and I started looking around the ship.

"I found Reynolds, my port gunner (he was also cook), had been shot through the throat and shoulder. I got him down below and had the chief torpedoman and the radioman give him first aid.

"Our mast had been shot off a foot over my head, so we couldn't use our radio for sending. The port turret had been hit and its guns were out of action.

"Our objective now was to get Reynolds to a doctor. We were going like a bat out of hell. I couldn't see the 41 boat—it was so dark I couldn't even see the shore. I just had to look at the compass and make mental estimates as to how far we had gone in various directions since I last had seen land I recognized, and then guess where we now were. I thought we were near the narrow channel between the islands; would another Jap destroyer be laying for me there?

"Suddenly, directly ahead, a searchlight came on, less than a mile away—a Jap steaming full speed at me. I borely had time to give a hard left and a hard right and we went scooting past each other at a relative speed of sixty knots before he had a chance to fire a shot. He turned, holding me down with his light like a bug under a pin, and started chasing, blazing away with big guns—two splashes four hundred feet away, two more fifty feet away. I started zig-zagging to squirm out of that light—wouldn't let my gunners fire a shot; it would help him keep our position. I was getting away, all right, but he kept firing for ten minutes, although his accuracy was going to hell. By 1:30 I could barely see his light, which was waving around, searching the water back of us.

"I kept on, wide-open, wondering how we'd ever get in, since we had no charts, it was black as pitch, and I knew coral reefs must be all around us. At four o'clock I slowed down and headed into where I hoped the beach was, taking soundings. The water suddenly shoaled off and bump! we were aground—a pinnacle of coral under her belly. Looking down with flashlights we could see the water was twenty feet deep with coral pinnacles all around us about every twenty feet, like a petrified forest, rising to within five feet of the surface.

"Studying the shore line, I realized we were about ten miles too far up the coast. I sent Ensign Richardson ashore in a rowboat to send an army doctor and ambulance out from Cebu for Reynolds, and also a tug for us.

"For the next hour we salved shiprocking it, trying to jigggle it off the pinnacles, backfiring with the engines—and finally managed to roll it off.

"Reynolds was feeling fine now.

I'd suddenly remembered a little present Peggy had given me on the boat, went down to my locker and brought it up for him—a couple of eastern tablets and a sedative pill. Now he was sitting topside smoking, although he couldn't drink because the water would leak out the hole in his throat. They'd been short of gas on the boat, but she sneaked down out for me just in case I got too fed up on patrol. A ball of a thought that present, and much more useful than a gold cigarette case.

"I went down into the engine room and there was Hunter, my chief engineer's mate, with his arm practically blown off in bullet hole, entered his elbow and gone out a three-inch hole in his forearm, but he was still manning the engines. I gave the other to abandon ship. It turned out that there were only three of us left, so it was a job getting the wounded out while the Japanese tried to take us. We made the mistake of taking off our shoes, and the general ran our foot to nothing as we staggered carrying the men.

"I found Reynolds, who had been laid in the throat during the night, now lying with his hand over his heart.

"'Lieutenant,' he said, 'take me home.'

"'What do you mean?' I asked.

"'There's a place all aboard,' he said. 'It's been a long time since I've been able to sleep below deck. They are to be the belly tanks and they're fine. I can sleep right here.'

"I didn't have time even to wonder what in hell had become of our big American offensive and the air umbrella, because I had to throttle back, stopping the boat momentarily so that the next bomb would land twenty-five feet in front instead squarely on us. Then I gave her the gun and started trying to zigzag in that narrow four-hundred-foot-wide channel, meanwhile giving word to our machine guns to start firing.

"They bombed us for thirty minutes, and the farthest bomb was thirty feet away. We would wait for the bomb release, see it start falling, then I'd give hard rudder and it would miss by a few feet. All the while we had to keep in this narrow channel so we couldn't be beached helplessly on a coral reef, and work our way down it toward port, where presently some of the newly arrived American planes would see what was going on and come to help. We didn't doubt, of course, that they'd arrived. Four Jap seaplanes were after us, working in rotation—undoubtedly those from the second cruiser the army had reported as being around.

"When their bombs were exhausted they began diving down just over our mast stub to strafe us. With their first salvo they killed Harris. He was my torpedoman and also manning the starboard 50-caliber machine guns—a fine kid he was—he slumped down from his guns and rolled on the deck when a bullet ripped into his throat. So I put in

"Reynolds was feeling fine now.

I'd suddenly remembered a little present Peggy had given me on the boat, went down to my locker and brought it up for him—a couple of eastern tablets and a sedative pill. Now he was sitting topside smoking, although he couldn't drink because the water would leak out the hole in his throat. They'd been short of gas on the boat, but she sneaked down out for me just in case I got too fed up on patrol. A ball of a thought that present, and much more useful than a gold cigarette case.

"I went down into the engine room and there was Hunter, my chief engineer's mate, with his arm practically blown off in bullet hole, entered his elbow and gone out a three-inch hole in his forearm, but he was still manning the engines. I gave the other to abandon ship. It turned out that there were only three of us left, so it was a job getting the wounded out while the Japanese tried to take us. We made the mistake of taking off our shoes, and the general ran our foot to nothing as we staggered carrying the men.

"I found Reynolds, who had been laid in the throat during the night, now lying with his hand over his heart.

"'Lieutenant,' he said, 'take me home.'

"'What do you mean?' I asked.

"I didn't have time even to wonder what in hell had become of our big American offensive and the air umbrella, because I had to throttle back, stopping the boat momentarily so that the next bomb would land twenty-five feet in front instead squarely on us. Then I gave her the gun and started trying to zigzag in that narrow four-hundred-foot-wide channel, meanwhile giving word to our machine guns to start firing.

"They bombed us for thirty minutes, and the farthest bomb was thirty feet away. We would wait for the bomb release, see it start falling, then I'd give hard rudder and it would miss by a few feet. All the while we had to keep in this narrow channel so we couldn't be beached helplessly on a coral reef, and work our way down it toward port, where presently some of the newly arrived American planes would see what was going on and come to help. We didn't doubt, of course, that they'd arrived. Four Jap seaplanes were after us, working in rotation—undoubtedly those from the second cruiser the army had reported as being around.

"When their bombs were exhausted they began diving down just over our mast stub to strafe us. With their first salvo they killed Harris. He was my torpedoman and also manning the starboard 50-caliber machine guns—a fine kid he was—he slumped down from his guns and rolled on the deck when a bullet ripped into his throat. So I put in

"Our objective now was to get Reynolds to a doctor. We were going like a bat out of hell. I couldn't see the 41 boat—it was so dark I couldn't even see the shore. I just had to look at the compass and make mental estimates as to how far we had gone in various directions since I last had seen land I recognized, and then guess where we now were. I thought we were near the narrow channel between the islands; would another Jap destroyer be laying for me there?

"Suddenly, directly ahead, a searchlight came on, less than a mile away—a Jap steaming full speed at me. I borely had time to give a hard left and a hard right and we went scooting past each other at a relative speed of sixty knots before he had a chance to fire a shot. He turned, holding me down with his light like a bug under a pin, and started chasing, blazing away with big guns—two splashes four hundred feet away, two more fifty feet away. I started zig-zagging to squirm out of that light—wouldn't let my gunners fire a shot; it would help him keep our position. I was getting away, all right, but he kept firing for ten minutes, although his accuracy was going to hell. By 1:30 I could barely see his light, which was waving around, searching the water back of us.

"I kept on, wide-open, wondering how we'd ever get in, since we had no charts, it was black as pitch, and I knew coral reefs must be all around us. At four o'clock I slowed down and headed into where I hoped the beach was, taking soundings. The water suddenly shoaled off and bump! we were aground—a pinnacle of coral under her belly. Looking down with flashlights we could see the water was twenty feet deep with coral pinnacles all around us about every twenty feet, like a petrified forest, rising to within five feet of the surface.

"Studying the shore line, I realized we were about ten miles too far up the coast. I sent Ensign Richardson ashore in a rowboat to send an army doctor and ambulance out from Cebu for Reynolds, and also a tug for us.

"For the next hour we salved shiprocking it, trying to jigggle it off the pinnacles, backfiring with the engines—and finally managed to roll it off.

"Reynolds was feeling fine now.

I'd suddenly remembered a little present Peggy had given me on the boat, went down to my locker and brought it up for him—a couple of eastern tablets and a sedative pill. Now he was sitting topside smoking, although he couldn't drink because the water would leak out the hole in his throat. They'd been short of gas on the boat, but she sneaked down out for me just in case I got too fed up on patrol. A ball of a thought that present, and much more useful than a gold cigarette case.

NOTICE TO HOME CANNERS

The Glass Top Seal Fruit Jar Cap for Home Canning was developed as a Wartime product to conserve metal. It consists of a Metal Band, Glass Lid and Rubber Ring.

Because of the difference in the nature of these three materials this Cap must be used differently from any other fruit jar cap. If used properly it will give excellent results. If not used properly, results will be bad, including failure to seal and breakage of jars. Following are simple instructions for use of the Glass Top Seal Cap and must be followed carefully.

1. Do NOT use in Oven Canning.
2. If processing, (cooking in jar), leave 1 inch space in top of jar. If using open kettle, leave $\frac{1}{2}$ inch space in top of jar.
3. Fit rubber around projection on bottom side of lid.
4. Place lid so rubber lies between lid and top edge of jar.
5. Turn bands tight, then loosen slightly (about $\frac{1}{4}$ turn). Bands must fit loosely during processing (cooking).
This is important and must be done to insure heat results. If using Open Kettle, screw bands tight as soon as jar is filled.
6. After processing, screw bands tight to complete seal. Remove bands 12 hours after canning.

A Vital Message To All Shoe Buyers

FROM THE
International Shoe Company

BECAUSE there has been considerable misunderstanding regarding the quality of shoes now available to civilians, it is important that you become acquainted with the facts.

Perhaps this message from America's largest manufacturer of shoes will be helpful to you.

At present, our Government has first call on shoe materials. Millions of pairs of shoes are being manufactured annually for our armed forces. These shoes are built according to rigid government standards. Only the best materials and skilled workmanship are suitable. Neither you nor we would have it otherwise. Victory demands it.

But—does that mean good shoes—dependable shoes—are not to be had by civilians?

Not at all—you can still buy good shoes. The honor and integrity of the International Shoe Company stand behind that statement.

We, as well as other shoe manufacturers, could make more shoes were we willing to disregard quality—but quality is the essence of this message—and this company is determined not to use present conditions as an excuse for lowering the moral standards of its product—standards maintained for more than forty years.

Despite heavy demand from our armed forces, there is still a sufficient quantity of good, serviceable shoe material available to meet essential civilian requirements. We assure you that we will continue to manufacture shoes that will return full value for your dollar—and satisfactory shoe mileage.

You may continue to have confidence in the shoes made for men, women, and children by this company. We shall keep faith with the wearers of our shoes.

And Some People Opposed An Anti-Strike Law, Too!

The coddling of the Japanese in concentration camps in this country is beginning to bear the kind of fruit that could be expected. In a camp out in the State of Washington—of the vital Pacific coast—some 400 Japs and imported Mexicans refused to work because their movements had been restricted after a woman had been raped allegedly by one of the camp inmates. At last report, the "strike" was still going on! The restriction order, incidentally, simply forbids the Japs to wander around the town after dark without a legitimate excuse!

ME

THAT with everyone around here, and some of the neighbors, helping on the County Fair supplement, it is only natural that my mind should be active along that line this week . . . Without the company of "Him" Haile, I don't suppose the Fair will be just what it was last year to me personally . . . Of course, with "Him" in the Army, there is a want of possibility that I might take his wife and go to the Fair anyway . . . Well, we'll have to see about that . . . However, the thought just occurred to me that with this year's Fair emphasizing the fact that it is not unusual to be a world-beater, but is a "Country Fair for County People," why could not that just be taken literally? . . . I'll say this, there's everything in this country that's needed for a high-class Fair . . . What I show it would be if they could somehow just transplant up there for folks to see the big field in front of the Haile's porch, where side by side were grown and growing in short time ago acres and acres of long straight rows divided into three potoles, one of potatoes, one of corn and one of beans . . . That sounds like a prescription . . . Or if they could bring up and take just as they are now some of the tomato vines in the gardens of John Sylvestriker or M. S. Wilson, with ten or a dozen big tomatoes hanging in clusters . . . And it would want a model garden for straight rows, well-contrived, and all-around excellent, he could get it in the garden of Theodore Moore, over on the Seneca Trail . . . Of course I know that she excels in some things, but I had no idea up to now what qualifications Jerry Dott had for a superintendent of the pie and cake department . . . To her I would suggest that she write to get an entry of Mary Elizabeth Hunter's strawberry shortcake or sweet potato pie; and some of Mrs. George Sharp's pickled onions . . . If she can find out who it is up in the Greenbush section that makes them, she should also get one of that community's whipped cream pies . . . Jerry might also get another lead from Sam Henkel about the Greenbank cooks, because I understand that he and some other persons sampled some rolls and jelly from their kitchen there—when the housewife was not at home . . . and he's such a bunch Presbyterian, too! . . . And, we make no excuse when it comes to the Midway, either, for county attractions there we suggest Dr. L. C. McClelland and Moody Kincaid as two members of a barber shop quartet . . . Ella Callon ought to be good for an act entitled "Midnight Revue—A Peajama Specialty" . . . Fred McLaughlin could entertain the crowd with funny stories on people you know . . . Would suggest Irene McLaughlin for the musical accompaniment for the acts, because she knows all the old favorites, and if a piano is needed for her out at the Fair Grounds, perhaps Howard Hevener would consent to transport it . . . but I don't know for sure, of course . . . For a grandstand act, a real wow that we witnessed a preview of is Mack Brooks riding a bicycle, with one hand on the handlebar and the other hand holding a dog on the seat behind him while he takes it for a ride . . . Plenty of entertainment could be provided for those who just like to watch by getting Dewey Stample, Zed Smith, Frank King and Gordon Mark to stage a croquet championship . . . they'll pay 40 or 50 points any old evening and never mind in the least . . . Dolly delirious and Six Herold have left little lacking in stellar attractions for horseback riding, but if more entries are needed here, Mrs. Harry Cochran and Mrs. Carl Sheetz have been practicing up and should be ready by now to win place or show, or whatever the terms are . . . If I had my way this year, my first act to aid the Pocahontas County Fair would be to make Millie Lee Hevener the Queen, which, it seems to me, certainly would be quite fitting, indeed . . . Of course, nobody asked me to help stage the Fair, and all arrangements have been made . . . And not such bad arrangements either, we'll say . . . because look, for instance, at the fact that Mrs. Pat Ward has been made head of the Flower Department, and if there was ever anyone who, like a flower, tried to give beauty to the world, Mrs. Ward is that person . . . I'm a little dubious though, I admit, about Dick Currie being the superintendent for the Old Relics Department . . . Of course, as U. V. Abner says, any fool can plainly see why they'd choose him for that job . . . Ah can, too . . . He's grown an old tell-tale right on his upper lip . . . Just like the one my Dad wore back when he met Mom, and which was right in keeping with his private shaving mug on the shelf above the washpan . . . the old days when a water straw was used to what may than be the first time in history I've ever heard of the Fair.

Farm Bureau Will Celebrate Its Silver Anniversary

When the West Virginia Farm Bureau meets in Clarksburg on August 9 and 10, it will have a little celebrating to do—commemorating its own "silver anniversary."

Twenty-five years ago, in March, 1918, the West Virginia Farm Bureau came into being with A. C. Huff, of Ritchie county, now of Marietta, O., as the first president.

The early farm bureau movement had its beginning before World War One, when "county agents" were employed by commercial firms to encourage increased farm production and thus create a better farm market for city goods.

In the years since its organization, the Farm Bureau has been active in various ways. It set up the first state-wide fertilizer pool, which saved the farmers much money, organized the West Virginia Farm Bureau Service Company to buy, sell, and manufacture cooperatively for the farmers, organized livestock marketing associations, fostered the state cooperative marketing law, set up the West Virginia wool pool, backed the state tax classification amendment to the constitution, promoted the idea of cooperative insurance for farmers, and helped enact a state county agent law, pure seed, feed, and fertilizer law, fresh egg law, milk product regulations, and animal quarantines.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

FDR, Churchill Seek Italy's Surrender As Allies Smash at Sicily Resistance; MacArthur Forces Gain in New Guinea; Farmers Get First Call on Gas Stocks

EDITORIAL NOTES: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper. Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Seabees are shown about to board a transport somewhere in Australia for duty in a combat zone. A naval band gives the men a lively sendoff. Although performing construction work, Seabees are also trained to protect themselves against attack.

SICILY:'The Hour Has Come'

Axial resistance on Sicily stiffened as Gen. Bernard Montgomery's British 8th army moved on the big port of Catania, which is 55 miles from the terminus of Messina, where but two miles of water separates the island from the Italian mainland.

As the battle of Sicily raged, President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill told the Italian people the hour had come to honorably capitulate.

While British troops clattered toward the great plains which roll around Catania, Gen. George S. Patton's 7th American army fought its way into the area of Vizzini, from which the British flank can be covered or an assault sprung toward the Axis rear.

Hundreds of Allied paratroopers continued to be dropped behind the enemy's lines near Catania. To the front, the 8th army recovered from a heavy Axis blow with which they had driven into Montgomery's base at Augusta before being repelled.

FUEL:Gas for Farmers

Predicting a tightening of the supply of crude oil in the West, the Petroleum Administration for War took steps to provide sufficient gasoline for farmers throughout the country by giving them first call on available stocks.

According to PAP, farmers are using about 100,000 barrels of motor fuel daily, 90 per cent of which is being consumed outside of the East. About 70,000 barrels are received in the Middlewest.

As the PAP made its announcement, the big-inch pipe line running from Merts, Ill., to the East was opened. Eventually the line will pump 100,000 barrels of crude daily. Thus leaving the West, of supplies that had previously abounded because of a lack of transportation.

Meanwhile, the oil industry continues to be hit by the drop in oil prices, partly caused, spokesmen say, of a rural exodus of 4 million people. As a result, producers have between 50 to 70 percent more oil than they did a year ago. The next 20 years will have to be present.

PACIFIC:New Guinea Victory

With the fall of Mubo, the big Japanese base of Salamaua in New Guinea lay in peril of capture by Australian and American forces operating from oil sides.

Mubo fell about two weeks after the start of General MacArthur's Pacific offensive. American troops landed on Nassau bay to the east of the town, and then marched into the interior to cut off Japanese forces from the rear and effect a junction with the Australians. At the same time, Allied soldiers attacked the enemy's main lines, and thus, completely enveloped on all sides, Mubo was overrun.

The Allied success at Mubo came as American troops pressed closer to the Japanese air base of Munda on New Georgia island. Approaching the stronghold from the north and east, doughboys worked cautiously through jungle foliage to gain ground. Squeezed, the enemy launched one counterattack, but withdrew fire after being stopped.

CANNED GOODS:Cut Civilians' Share

Already rationed, canned fruits, vegetables and soup supplies for civilians will be cut another 15 per cent in the next 12 months, the War Food administration announced. Of and soups, domestic consumers will get 70 per cent, and of canned fruits and juices, they will receive 53 per cent.

The total supply of canned vegetables and soups in the next year is expected to total 262,000,000 cases. Of this amount, civilians will be allotted approximately 180,000,000. The War Services will obtain practically all of the remainder, with about 4 per cent going to the Allies and other purposes.

About 61,000,000 cases of canned fruits and juices, excluding citrus, will be produced, WFA estimated, and of this supply, civilians will be allowed approximately 31,000,000 cases. Approximately 24,000,000 cases will be allotted to the services, with the remainder marked for the Allies and export.

FOREIGN DEBTS:Mexico, Canada Pay

An improvement in financial conditions arising from the stimulation of the war was noted in the nation of Mexico and Canadian governments in announcing plans for the discharge of their debt obligations.

For the first time in years, Mexico has paid up its huge debts, including all railroads, except the Trans-Mexican, and 6 and 44 per cent of its debts on the total of $30,000,000,000, on a total Mexican debt of $1,000,000,000.

Canada has also reduced its debts, and has now paid off its debts on the total of $1,000,000,000.

Methodists Begin Crusade for "World Collaboration"

100 METHODIST BISHOPS
IN 100 CITIES

Urge Exercise of Church Influence Upon Leaders

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—Blasting the usual dilatory practice of church people who passively wait until undesired political action is taken, then frame futile resolutions of protest, Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam of Boston, speaking at Hotel LaSalle to members of nations boards of The Methodists Church in session here, firmly announced church people "to exercise their influence at the place where decision is made, and before decision is made."

The Boston bishop, elected to lead "Crusade for a New World Order," which the Council of Bishops had just formally launched, described the coming effort as Methodism's part in a general movement of all churches to play a creative part in post-war planning. The goal of the crusade, according to Bishop Oxnam, is to secure a flood of personal letters to Congressional representatives expressing faith in a world organized on the basis of international collaboration. "We are proceeding on the assumption that Methodists want a just and durable peace, that they are prepared to make the sacrifices necessary to establish world order, and that they are ready to call for the next step in the upward evolution of government," he said.

"No action is contemplated whereby the church would cross the line that properly separates church and state," the Bishop assured the group, but he added, "Churchmen as citizens are responsible in a democratic society for the voicing of their opinions."

The crusade will be promoted through the church press, by 100 regional mass meetings to be held in as many important centers between January 9 and 30, by home visitations made by interested people to encourage church members to write letters, and in a special Sunday of consecration in the spring. At this time Methodists will be asked to address friends and relatives in the armed services messages assuring them of home support of a pence that will guarantee against the next generation being called upon to duplicate their sacrifices.

When Italy Is Invaded

Italy has invaded Italy this year, and it is the people, by and large, in that Autocratic country, that Italian Mussolini, Ambassador to London, and his son, leader of the Fascist party, are to blame for this.

SAVE FAT TO LOAD OUR GUNS.

GUNPOWDER, IN 1776, WAS MADE CHIEFLY OF SALT PETER. FARMERS HAD TO SAVE WASTE ANIMAL AND VEGETABLE MATTER TO PROVIDE ENOUGH OF IT.

MODERN EXPLOSIVES REQUIRE GLYCERINE WHICH CAN BE MADE OF WASTE KITCHEN FATS. IF EVERY HOME SUPPLIES ITS SHARE, OUR FIGHTING MEN WILL GET THE AMMUNITION THEY NEED.

A TABLESPOON OF FAT SAVED EACH DAY MAKES NEARLY ONE POUND A MONTH... ONE POUND OF FAT WILL FIRE 4 ANTI-AIRCRAFT SHELLS. 12 POUNDS WILL FIRE 30 ANTI-TANK SHELLS.

EVEN ONE TABLESPOON A DAY FROM EVERY FAMILY WILL PROVIDE THE 200 MILLION POUNDS WE NEED THIS YEAR. SAVE ALL YOU CAN—TAKE IT TO YOUR BUTCHER.

HOITAL THOUGHTS

Breakin' of horses, back slippin' how does it come that political parties always manage to get a horse and his rider to the middle of the track just at election time?

Everyone I tell the truth I add to me strength of character.

All we know about life goes to the memory to which he brought thoughts with a government going too far can but evidently be shown little or nothing about the good of all. A good to well over many years and strength

WHEN OUR BOYS
COME MARTINING HOME
WHEN JOHN marched away to war, he went to fight for a land he loved—a land that provided for him freedom of action, opportunity to survive, to achieve, to accumulate;
a land in which he could found a family with the assurance of an opportunity to provide for a wife and children. His America gave him the chance he craved—the same chance it had given his father and his father's father. To prevent the be-spelling of that fair land, John went to war to fight, and it need be,
to die for it.

There are millions of these young,
liberty-loving, opportunity-seeking, ambitious and energetic Johns. They will defeat the armies of the tyrants and some day the greater portion of them will be coming home again.

When these Johns of ours come home, they will expect to find that land of freedom and opportunity for which they were fighting; a land in which they can work and build, each according to his ability, his initiative and energy; a land in which they can choose their vocation with an unlimited privilege of working at the job they selected.

These Johns will not appreciate being regulated, regimented and told where, at what and under what conditions they can work. They will not relish the necessity of paying tribute to a legalized racketeer before they are privileged to work. They will be surprised should they find a super-government from which the government they knew must take orders. They would not understand a government where the laws were created by edicts instead of by acts of congress. It was such things they fought against. Should they find those conditions existing here, they would feel they had defeated an enemy abroad and lost at home.

We on the home front must not let down the Johns who are fighting for what they and we have cherished—"a government of the people, by the people and for the people." That is what our Johns will expect to find when they march home from the war after defeating the enemies of freedom, the kind of freedom
they have understood.

MUTINY AND WARTIME STRIKES

IN THE SUMMER OF 1918, when the Huns were pounding at the very gates of Paris, a division of the French army went on a strike. The soldiers mutinied, threw down their tools—their guns—and marched out of the place they had occupied in the battle line. They were not given a few days to decide whether they would stay out or go back. A division of American marines being held in reserve was thrown into the space
the striking French soldiers had deserted. The marines heroically charged the German line and broke it. That started the retreat of the Huns which ended with the surrender on November 11.

The striking French division was court-martialed. Men selected by men from each regiment and company faced firing squads and paid with their lives for the cowardice of that division.

The war in which we are now engaged for the preservation of our country is an all-out war. Engaged in it are men employed on two fronts—the battle front and the home front. The home front concerns the service of supply. The battle front may be as disastrous as the French division in flight.

The front may be
as disastrous as the French division in flight.
There should be no mutiny. There should be no strike
on the home front.

1,000 Members of State Guard to Train at Dawson

West Virginia's State Guard will be a star rival of the old National Guard forces after approximately 1,000 members complete a week's training at Camp Dawson, August 8 to 13, it was predicted today by command officials.

The men who volunteered to make up the regiments that replaced the National Guard, first to be drafted in World War II, have a greater incentive and are better equipped to give the state its greatest home front military force, it was pointed out.

With older men generally within the ranks, the State Guard will climax months of intensive armory training with Camp Dawson field work that will keep them hard at their tasks every day for a week. The program will broaden effectiveness through scouting and patrolling and instructions in Julie.

BLACK MARKET is springing up in the trail of shortages.

There are no Black Markets in electricity because there are no shortages.

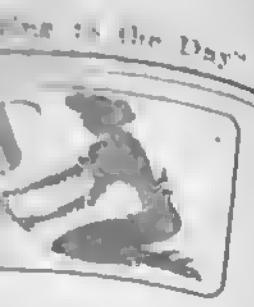

War production calls for tremendous amounts of electric power, but every industrial demand has been met—and every essential item in need has been satisfied.

We're proud of the job our industry has done under experienced business management. But one word of caution is in order.

Electricity depends in part upon fuel and transportation. Don't waste electricity just because it isn't rationed!
